Introduction

On the eve of the American election, war is brewing between China and Russia as each side masses soldiers on their common border—all over a Chinese plan to divert a crucial water supply that currently supplies a key Russian agricultural center.

Each side is desperate to find out what happens in the American election because the Democratic candidate, Senator Frederick Thurston, supports the Chinese position while the Republican candidate, Florida Governor Sam Houston St. Clair, supports the Russians.

In a jolting development late on Election night, a tie in the Electoral College (something that's actually happened a couple of times in U.S. history) creates a deadlock. The Constitution mandates that the newly elected House of Representatives, convening in January, will determine the election.

Late that Election night, incumbent Republican President Jeffrey Norwalk spends time alone in the Oval Office. Also up late is Norwalk's Aide for Congressional Liaison, Phil Slanetti, who has over the years built up a laundry list of dirt on members of Congress.

Norwalk meets with him and tells Slanetti to gear up to use the damaging information in the secret Keystone File to blackmail members of the House to vote for St. Clair.

They only have 8 weeks till the new Congress is sworn in.

The Creator Andrew Delaplaine

Andrew Delaplaine is based on South Beach, Miami's Billion Dollar Sandbar.

In the late 1980s and into the 1990s, he and his sister Renee were part of the hardy group that helped South Beach turn the corner from slum to international destination (which has its good as well as bad angles to explore—it was a lot more fun when it was a slum). They owned a popular restaurant (Scratch), a weekly newspaper (The Wire) still published today, and a famous nightclub (The Warsaw Ballroom). A bumpy ride, but lots of fun.

At the same time, he also produced a weekly TV program for 5 years.

Delaplaine has written and directed three features (one doc, two narrative features), and won several awards for his film work. (See www.imdb.com for details). His latest film, "Meeting Spencer," starring Jeffrey Tambor, won the prestigious Milan International Film Festival Award for Best Screenplay.

The Team

A group of eight people, both men and women, are silhouetted against a bright background of a large window. They are standing in a row, facing forward. The window looks out onto a city skyline under a dark, cloudy sky with several lightning bolts striking in the distance. The floor reflects the scene.

Season One

Beginning on Election Night when there's a tie vote for President, the action moves to Washington, where Sam installs himself in a suite at the Willard to start meetings with all the congressmen who are on the fence about their votes. Since each state gets only one vote, the bean counters quickly figure out who the most important players are.

Sam doesn't know Phil Slanetti is working behind the scenes using the dirt in the Keystone File to blackmail key members of state delegations they need to win the vote. He's helped by British Ambassador Ellsworth and Russian Ambassador Kornilevski.

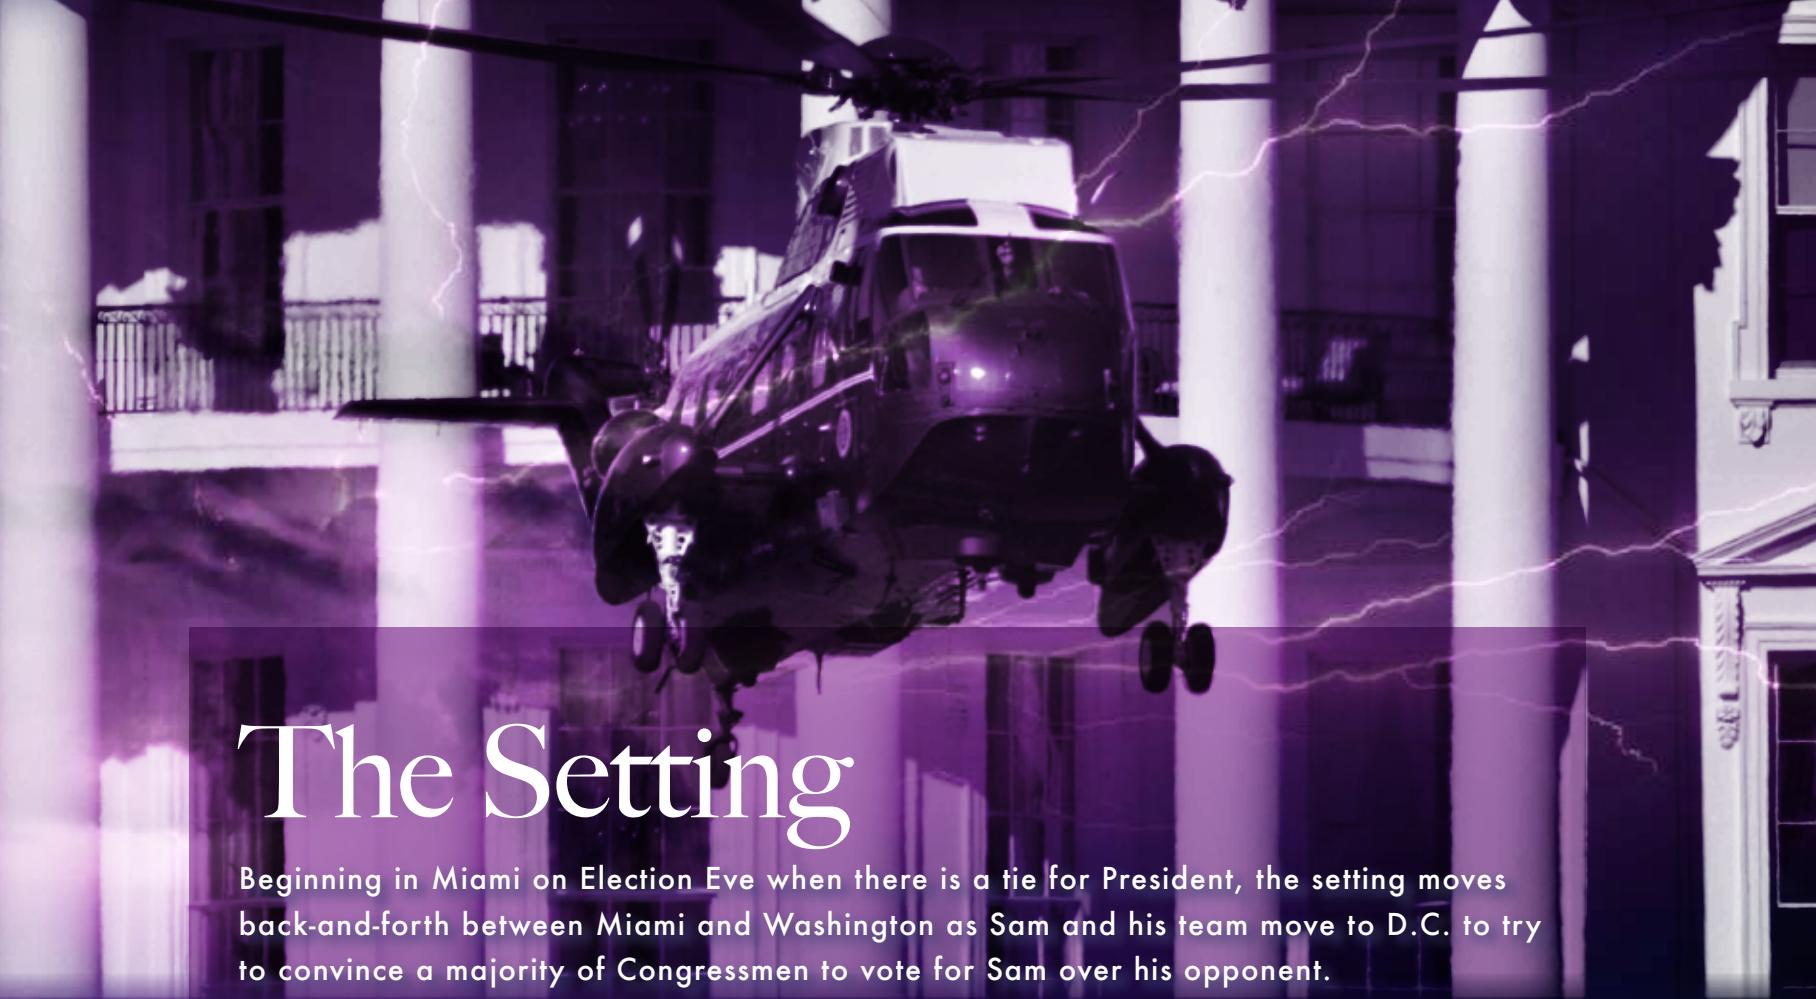

Jack, also in D.C. to help his dad, gets called back to Miami to deal with a narco-sub his team finds out has sunk off Key West.

Jack's heated relationship with Babe Fuentes also plays into the story. It's bad enough that her older sister Raven was Jack's lover, but now her younger sister, Antonia, is discovered to be sleeping with Rafael St. Clair, Jack's younger brother, a Coast Guard lieutenant.
